Toddler Brings Toy Car to Petrol Pump for 'Refueling,' Attendant Joins in the Fun

A toddler, reportedly four years old, brought a toy car to a petrol pump in India and asked the attendant to refuel it. Amused by the child's request, the attendant played along, treating the process of filling the toy car's tank as a game.

The incident was captured on video and shared on social media, where it quickly went viral due to its lighthearted nature and the attendant's friendly response. Viewers praised the attendant's positive attitude and the child's imaginative play.

Petrol pump staff confirmed that no actual petrol was put into the toy car and that the incident was a harmless, spontaneous interaction. The video has been viewed millions of times, sparking discussions about child safety and responsible social media use.

Centre temporarily suspends PAP for tourists visiting Nagaland

New Delhi – The Ministry of Home Affairs has issued an order to temporarily suspend the Protected Area Permit (PAP) for all tourists traveling to Nagaland. This move comes after sustained demands from the state assembly and local citizen groups, who had highlighted the negative impact of the PAP on

NPP Asks Nagaland Governor to Intervene on Wildlife Protection Act Implementation

The National Democratic Progressive Party (NPP) has formally requested the Governor of Nagaland to intervene in the implementation of the Wildlife Protection Act, 1972, in the state.

The party claims that certain provisions of the Act conflict with local customs and ongoing development projects, and is therefore seeking clarification or potential exemptions to strike a balance between conservation and regional priorities.

The NPP has asked the Governor to examine the issue and provide appropriate guidance to the state government. No official response has been received from the Governor's office so far.

This demand highlights the ongoing tension between national wildlife conservation laws and the autonomy of northeastern states.

Nagaland Singer Wins Hearts with Unparalleled Bhojpuri Pronunciation in Chhath Song

A singer from Nagaland presented a Chhath Puja song with unmatched Bhojpuri diction, attracting national attention. The video, which blended the northeastern musical style with mainstream Indian music, went viral shortly after being uploaded to social media. Hindi-speaking viewers praised the effort, noting that the precision of Bhojpuri pronunciation by a Nagaland artist is rare. Traditional phrases such as “Kaanchi ke laal” and “Suraj Dev” were sung flawlessly, bringing the spirit of Chhath rituals to life. Experts say that such performances strengthen cultural exchange, with artists from different states honoring local traditions. The show not only highlights the ancient sun-worship ceremony but also narrows linguistic gaps, making India’s diversity even more commendable.

Health Spending in Nagaland Drops 29% as CAG Highlights Infrastructure Deficiencies

The Health Department of Nagaland has recorded a sharp 29% drop in expenditure, as reported in the latest audit by the Comptroller and Auditor General (CAG). This reduction indicates a significant contraction in financial resources allocated for the state's health services.

shrinking budget, several key programs have not received adequate funding, impacting both preventive and curative aspects of healthcare. Limited resources have made it difficult to maintain existing facilities and launch new health projects.

The CAG also pointed to serious deficiencies in infrastructure, including a shortage of functional hospitals, a lack of essential medical equipment, and an inadequate number of health workers in several districts. These gaps weaken the state's capacity to provide basic healthcare to the population.

State officials have been urged to restructure budget priorities to bridge these gaps and ensure health infrastructure meets national standards. The report comes at a time when the state is striving to improve health outcomes under various central government schemes.

NBCC India provides medical equipment to Mokokchung District Hospital in Nagaland under CSR assistance

National Buildings Construction Corporation (NBCC) India, a central public sector undertaking, has completed the delivery of medical equipment to the Mokokchung District Hospital in Nagaland. The transfer was made under the company's Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR) programme, which aims to strengthen health infrastructure in under-developed regions. The equipment delivered comprises a range of essential medical devices that are expected to enhance the hospital's diagnostic and treatment capabilities. Specific items were not listed, but the donation aligns with the government's goal of bolstering primary health services in the Northeast. Hospital administrators said the contribution will bridge gaps in patient care, especially in the district's remote areas. NBCC stated that the initiative reflects its broader commitment to community development and ensuring access to quality health services across India. The episode illustrates how CSR programmes can play a vital role in supplementing public health resources, particularly in regions where budget constraints limit service delivery.

Nagaland Implements Agarwood Policy to Promote Forest-Based Livelihoods

The Nagaland state government has formally presented the Agarwood Policy, which aims to encourage the planting, harvesting, and marketing of agarwood, a valuable resin-producing tree in the region. The announcement was made at a press conference attended by officials from the Forest Department and the Ministry of Agriculture.

The policy includes subsidies for saplings, technical training for farmers, and simplification of the licensing process to facilitate legal trade. Its goal is to provide sustainable income to forest-dependent tribal families while preserving biodiversity.

Implementation will be the responsibility of the Nagaland Forest Department, which will work in coordination with local cooperative societies. A pilot program will be launched in selected districts during the upcoming planting season, with a target of significant growth in agarwood production over the next five years.

The government believes this initiative will attract private investment, increase export earnings, and establish Nagaland as a key player in the global agarwood market while adhering to environmental standards.

ICJ Rules Myanmar Committed Genocide Against Rohingya

The International Court of Justice (ICJ), the principal judicial organ of the United Nations, has ruled that actions carried out by the Myanmar military against the Rohingya fall under the definition of genocide as per the 1948 Genocide Convention.

The decision follows a case filed by Gambia in 2019, which accused Myanmar of systematic killings, sexual violence, and forced displacement of the Rohingya population in Rakhine State. The court considered evidence including UN investigators' findings, satellite imagery, and victim testimonies.

Although the ICJ lacks enforcement power, it ordered Myanmar to immediately prevent further genocide, ensure the safety of the Rohingya, and provide regular compliance reports to the court. This order is likely to increase international pressure on the Yangon government.

International human rights organizations have welcomed the ruling and urged the United Nations and member states to translate the decision into concrete action, which may include sanctions and humanitarian aid for displaced Rohingya.

Indian Army Action in Nagaland Leaves 13 Civilians Dead, Heightening State Tension

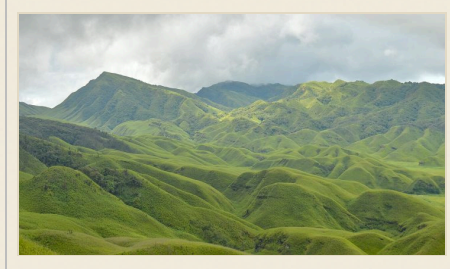

An army operation in Nagaland resulted in the deaths of at least 13 civilians, prompting widespread concern across the state. The incident has intensified tensions between the local community and security forces, with residents demanding clarity on the reasons behind the fatalities. The state government has not released further details, but the episode has accelerated calls for a thorough investigation. The community, grappling with the loss, is seeking accountability.

Kohima Police Mandate Prior Permission for Drone Use at Hornbill Festival

Kohima police have issued an order requiring all drone operators to obtain prior permission before flying during the Hornbill Festival. The directive, released ahead of the event's commencement, stresses the need to safeguard public safety and prevent any disruption to the programme. The police clarified that the rule applies to both amateur and professional operators who wish to provide aerial footage or services within the festival grounds. Drones flown without permission may be subject to enforcement action. The measure follows growing concerns in India over the misuse of drones at crowded public events. By implementing a pre-approval system, Kohima police aim to ensure that uncontrolled aerial activity does not cause problems at the Hornbill Festival. Festival organisers welcomed the step, stating that it aligns with broader efforts to protect participants and visitors. Details of the permission process will be shared through official police channels. The directive will remain in force for the entire duration of the festival, after which normal drone regulations will resume.

Nagaland Launches Agarwood Policy 2026 to Boost Farmer Incomes

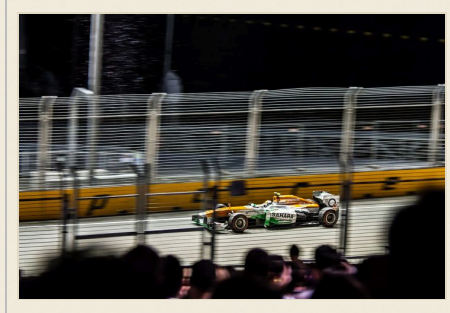

The Nagaland government has introduced the Agarwood Policy 2026, a new initiative designed to promote agarwood cultivation.

Under the policy, farmers will be provided with a structured framework to participate in agarwood orchards, enabling them to improve their livelihoods.

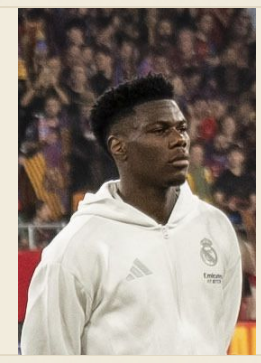

Officials believe this step will increase rural incomes by opening new market opportunities and contribute to the state's agricultural diversification.

Grand Theft Auto VI launches in India after 13-year wait

The long-awaited Grand Theft Auto VI has officially arrived in India, ending a 13-year wait for fans of the series. Rockstar Games confirmed the release after months of speculation, a story reported by the Nagaland Post. The GTA franchise has become a cultural icon among Indian gamers, who have followed each new installment through imports and online streaming. The arrival of GTA VI is expected to generate considerable excitement across the country's gaming community. The game is now available through major digital stores and select retail partners, with versions released for both current-generation consoles and PCs. Local distributors said pricing is in line with other premium releases and that regional payment options have been added to simplify purchase. Industry analysts believe the launch will further boost India's rapidly growing video-game market. While official sales figures are not yet available, early pre-order data indicate strong demand. Authorities have warned consumers to purchase only from authorized channels to avoid counterfeit copies, which have occasionally appeared in the market.

Real Madrid signs French midfielder Aurélien Tchouaméni to six-year contract

French midfielder Aurélien Tchouaméni, aged 24, has signed a new six-year contract with Real Madrid, securing his tenure at the club through 2029. The deal follows the expiration of his previous contract, which was due to end in 2025. Real Madrid's official channels announced that Tchouaméni's versatility, work rate and tactical intelligence were the primary reasons for the extension. Since joining Real Madrid from AS Monaco in 2023, Tchouaméni has played a pivotal role in midfield, earning praise from the coaching staff and teammates alike. The move signals the club's long-term planning, with expectations that Tchouaméni will continue to contribute alongside other emerging talents to the team's success. The contract announcement was made at a press conference in the Santiago Bernabéu Stadium, where the player thanked the club for its confidence and pledged to keep delivering his best for the team's ambitions.
